

Your first Website

Recreate this simple website using all the skills we learnt in the last couple weeks.

You will need both HTML (be careful to use the proper structure!) and various CSS rules. This paragraph has a lightgray background color and slightly rounded edges. Make sure the text does not protrude from the background despite the rounded corners.

Paragraphs which are siblings to a h1 which is a direct descendent of an article use bold font.

Task 1

General Body Rules

- Uses a font without serifs
- Has a 10% margin all around
- All values have to be relative

Some sections are highlighted:

- The have a green, dashed border
- A bit of padding
- Some top & bottom margins (but not left or right margins)

Special List

- An unordered list in a section which directly succeeds another section
- Uses circles as bullet points
- Except for this one item which decided to use a square and color itself red

Heading in a section

A h1 in a section uses italics. Those in an article do not.

This paragraph has a lightgray background color and slightly rounded edges. The second time we need this logic... so? What are you going to do?

Task 2

Some Enumerations

1. One
2. Two
3. Three
4. Some nested values with Armenian numbers
  - Ա. A
  - Բ. B
  - Գ. C

A History Lesson

Include the provided image. If the user hovers over it display its 'center' within an ellipse. Also make sure that it has a width of at most 40%

Click here to learn more about Napoleon in Wikipedia. The previous link is colored red instead of blue, not underlined and will not change its styling after the user visited it.